UWHEN is pleased to present the 2015 Fall Workshops, which are mission-driven events applicable to members regardless of faculty, staff, or administrator roles. Attendance is free for UWHEN institutional members and $35 for non-institutional attendees. All attendees of the USU event must pay a $32.64 fee for the customized MBTI report. Seating is limited for each workshop. To guarantee seating, register early via the links below. For more information or to join the listserv, email info@uwhen.org.

Be the Change
Friday, September 18
12:45 - 3 PM
SUU Student Center
Cedar City, Utah
Cost: Free
Limit: 100
Registration: https://2015uwhensuu.eventbrite.com

Ghandi’s challenge to “Be the change you want to see in the world” has never been more relevant than today. We must drive change to solve the world’s biggest problems. The same skills that allow you to solve global problems will allow you to drive personal and organizational change to improve the world around you. Don’t miss this inspiring and empowering leadership workshop with facilitator Devin D. Thorpe.

Devin D. Thorpe, founder of the Your Mark on the World Center, calls himself a champion of social good. He writes about and advocates for those who are doing good. He travels extensively as a volunteer doing service, as a journalist finding heroes and as a speaker sharing what he’s learned. As a Forbes Contributor he covers social entrepreneurship and impact investing. Devin’s books on personal finance and crowdfunding draw on his entrepreneurial finance experience as an investment banker, CFO, treasurer, and mortgage broker, helping people use financial resources to do good. Previously he worked on the US Senate Banking committee staff and earned an MBA at Cornell.

A Little Understanding Can Change Everything!
Friday, September 25
12:45 - 3:15PM
USU Merrill-Cazier Library Auditorium
Logan, Utah
Cost: $32.64 for Personalized Report
Limit: 60
Registration: https://2015uwhensusu.eventbrite.com

This interactive Myers-Briggs Type Indicator® (MBTI) workshop utilizes a time-tested tool to identify personality preferences in ourselves and our co-workers, enabling greater communication and productivity in an empowered workplace. From faculty to staff, collaborating effectively is improved when people understand and appreciate their differences. Every participant takes the online assessment before the workshop and will learn fresh strategies that encourage workplace cooperation and trust. Whether this is your first exposure to MBTI or not, there is no better way to discover powerful new insights at the individual and team levels. Register early to receive the link to complete your assessment! Facilitators include Derek Jack and Suzanne Sumsion of Utah State University.

Derek Jack is the Associate Director for Career Services at USU. After earning his Master’s Degree in Rehabilitation Counseling from USU, he worked in private rehab in Northern California for four years. He returned to USU in 2004 and has worked with students in the College of Education and Human Services and the Arts for eight years. A leader in his field, Derek serves on multiple board of director positions in state and national associations that benefit students in their various stages of career development and employment.

Suzanne Sumsion has been a Career Coach in Career Services at USU since November 2013. She works directly with the College of Engineering students and greatly enjoys helping them navigate the career and internship process. In addition to her coaching responsibilities, she manages all of the office social media accounts and marketing campaigns and is an instructor for the Career and Life Planning course. Suzanne completed her M.S. degree in Counseling and Guidance from California Lutheran University. Prior to coming to USU she worked in career centers in California and South Dakota.

The Art of Negotiation & Consensus-Building
Friday, October 2
12:45 - 3 PM
SLCC Student Services Building
Taylorsville, Utah
Cost: Free
Limit: 75
Registration: https://2015uwhenslcc.eventbrite.com

This workshop will help you understand new ways of thinking about negotiation and consensus-building—helping the brain refocus away from unproductive conflict to constructive dialogue. This approach to consensus-building requires all participants to listen actively to each other, to understand what really matters for themselves and the other participants, and to think creatively about how all needs might be met. Active listening and creative problem-solving as encouraged through the process of consensus-building can become internalized tools. Through small group dialogue and short exercises, Michele Straube teaches how to consider and integrate these processes into workplace environments.

For the past 20 years, Michele Straube has focused exclusively on alternative dispute resolution, including mediation, facilitation, training, and collaborative problem-solving. Michele also practiced law for more than 15 years, representing private and public sector clients. Before teaching at the University of Utah law school, Michele maintained a private mediation practice in which she designed and facilitated consensus-building processes and offered conflict management training. In addition to being on several national rosters for environmental third-party neutrals, she conducted mediations for the US Postal Service REDRESS program, and was a long-term-care ombudsman for Salt Lake County. From January 2008 to August 2010, Michele directed Salt Lake Solutions, SLC Mayor Ralph Becker's collaborative government initiative. Salt Lake Solutions projects model collaboration by engaging all segments of the community to address difficult public problems. Michele is known as a highly skilled and dynamic facilitator and mediator in the community.